Amish America: Plain Technology in a Cyber World

June 5–8, 2013

This international conference will highlight the challenges of new technology (Internet, telecommunications, production, manufacturing, household consumption, medicine, and leisure) for Amish communities in North America. Conference planners also welcome proposals from scholars and practitioners on other aspects of Amish life, as well as proposals related to non-Amish traditional groups of Anabaptist origin. Proposals for presentations as well as poster sessions are acceptable.

Specifications: A clear statement of topic, methods, and significance (350 words or less) and a one- to two-page resume of the presenter

Submission: By e-mail attachment to Donald Kraybill, kraybilld@etown.edu

Deadline: October 1, 2012

Decisions: December 1, 2012

Screening Committee: Donald Kraybill, Karen Johnson-Weiner, Steven M. Nolt

Questions: Donald Kraybill, kraybilld@etown.edu
